

POPE BENEDICT SUBMITS A DEFINITE PROPOSAL FOR PEACE

CATHOLIC CHURCH HEAD SUGGESTS RESTORATION OF BELGIUM AND SERBIA

State Department Admits Hearing of Pope's Suggestions Although Not Officially; Entente Diplomatic Circles Express Opinion That Proposal is Inspired by Germany for the Purpose of Splitting Up the Allies Regarding Their War Aims.

SUGGESTION WILL BE CAREFULLY CONSIDERED

ROME, August 14.—Peace proposals made by Pope Benedict have been delivered to all belligerent governments. The Pope suggests restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Rumania, and the peaceful solution of the problem of Alsace-Lorraine, Trent and Trieste, and Poland, according to the reports received from Vatican sources. It is expected the proposal will be published today by the Vatican.

WASHINGTON, August 14.—The State Department acknowledged it had received unofficial knowledge of Pope Benedict's peace proposal before today's news dispatches were received here. No official cognizance can be taken of it until the proposal is conveyed officially. Whatever consideration is given to it will be after consultation with the Allies.

Within the Entente diplomatic circle the opinion was freely and promptly expressed that the peace proposal was inspired by Germany and was an attempt to split the Allies in a conflicting discussion of their war aims.

At the Apostolic delegation all knowledge of the Pope's proposal was declined. It was said the Papal delegates had not transmitted it to the Allied States government and did not expect to do so. The opinion was expressed that it would come through a neutral government. The extent of the State Department's information does not indicate through what channel the proposal will be conveyed and gives no information from which an inference might be drawn as to whether it will come through one of the Allied governments or through a dignitary of the church.

Officials were unusually explicit in saying that it could not be discussed until it came officially before the government and were emphatic in declaring that no statement whatever could be represented as reflecting the official view.

If an inference might be drawn from the undercurrents started in official circles by the reports, a trained observer would venture the opinion that the proposal is one that would be discussed in good faith by the Allies, but that it does not meet their war aims. It was indicated that a peace proposal coming from the Pope—the first actual proposal of the kind to come from the Vatican—would necessarily have to be considered carefully and deliberately and that an answer convincing to the world would have to be made.

How far the peace proposal reflects the close relationship of the Vatican with Austria whose earnest desire for peace despite German influence is well known, or how far it reflects a Catholic agitation for peace in Germany no one here would venture to say. It was recalled, however, that leading Catholics were prominent in the recent peace flurry in Germany.

POPE'S PROPOSAL INCLUDES WORLD'S PEACE PRINCIPLES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—An official outline of Pope Benedict's peace proposal received here disclosed that the pontiff includes some of the principle of world's peace for which President Wilson has declared. Among the Pope's proposals are rejection of armaments, freedom of the seas, and that there shall be no retaliatory struggle after the war for world commercial supremacy.

These are regarded as the foundation stones of the Pope's plan.

The Pope's proposal, which already has been delivered to the ambassadors and ministers of the warring powers in Rome is quite long, making in print something more than a column of large type. Although the proposal is being made to facilitate its transmission to the Allied States, it may not be effected for at least a day or two.

Meanwhile, however, an accurate outline of the principal points of the Pope's communication is in the hands of the government here and already received thoughtful consideration.

In eloquent language the Pontiff describes the terrible conditions existing in Europe, which he declares is headed for destruction unless the belligerents are willing to listen to the plans of international friendship for peace. Such conditions, the Pope feels, simply justify him in taking the present opportunity to suggest what may be, he hopes, at least a foundation on which peace negotiations may be initiated.

The Pope's proposal declared that the injuries to all belligerents de-

PERSIAN SURVIVOR SUSPECTS MERCHANT SHIP OFFICERS

That in his opinion captains and other officers of merchant ships are in the employ of the German government, was the statement of Jay Lewis of Uniontown, a member of the crew of the Persian, sunk off the coast of Spain last spring, before District No. 1 draft board this morning. Lewis claimed exemption because of his physical condition, he having been ill since his return to this country.

Lewis stated that the Swedish captain in the Persian, he believes, signalled the submarine which sank her. The U-boat, he said, was one of the finest he ever saw. It was painted all white. As it came close the crew joked with their soon-to-be victims. Lewis and other members of the crew were picked up by Spanish fishing boats and taken to a coast village. Later they went to Barcelona where Lewis met Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion. He says he often went "carnapping" with Johnson and the latter's wife.

Lewis is partly paralyzed as a result of illness suffered after he came back to America. He says he expects to return to Spain to see his many friends later in the year.

COMPANY B BOYS LEAVE FOR PHILADELPHIA

The detachment of Company B, Third regiment of Philadelphia, doing guard duty in this section of Western Pennsylvania, left here this morning about 9:45 on a special train, bound for Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, where the entire company will mobilize.

Ninety men boarded the train here. The train was composed of a baggage car, and two coaches. The detachment was in command of Captain Killyon, Lieutenant Dubbs, and Second Lieutenant Hayman. Ralph Wells, of the hospital corps, took care of the medical end of the company.

During the stay of the detachment here, a period of over four months, three new recruits were enlisted. They left with the company this morning. Private Fleckard from South Connellsville was one local boy to join and another, Private Smith of Masonstown enlisted here. Private Trenor, a Rockwood man, also joined here.

HOSACK, MEMBER OF 18TH, RECALLED FROM GUARD DUTY.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Clark and daughters, Misses Nell and Harriet Clark, returned to their home here last evening from Pittsburgh, where they had been visiting over the weekend. They made the trip primarily to see Mr. Clark's grandson, George M. Hosack, Jr., who had just been recalled to Pittsburgh to the camp of the Eighteenth regiment, of which he is a member. He had been on guard duty for some time in and around Du Bois. The Clark's visited him at camp.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTOMOBILE NEAR URSINA

Three were killed and four injured when W. H. Judy, of Garrett, Pa., drove his automobile across the Baltimore & Ohio track at a crossing west of Ursina at 3:42 yesterday afternoon, and was struck by No. 15, one of the road's fastest trains.

THE DEAD:
MRS. W. H. JUDY, badly injured, reported to have had broken back, died at the private hospital of Dr. Frantz at Confluence this morning.
ETHEL JUDY, aged three, instantly killed.
EUGENE JUDY, aged five, instantly killed.

THE INJURED:
W. H. JUDY, driver and owner of the car and head of the family which made up the automobile party, escaped with bruises and minor injuries.
CHARLES JUDY, aged 14 months, slightly injured.
EARL JUDY, aged seven, left leg fractured.
CLYDE JUDY, aged nine, slightly injured.

According to the report at local Baltimore & Ohio division headquarters, there was a warning bell at the crossing, which is the first road west of Ursina station, and the bell was ringing vigorously. Mr. Judy had a good view in both directions, and railroad officials declare that the only possible reason for the accident was an attempt to cross ahead of the train which he knew was approaching.

The locomotive struck the rear end of the automobile, which was an Oldsmobile touring car, with license No. 194875. The rear portion of the machine was practically demolished.

The train was held at Ursina, and the bodies of the two children, who were instantly killed, and the injured, taken aboard. Dr. L. N. Anderson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was on the train, gave them first treatment, and on arrival at Confluence, those injured were removed to Dr. Frantz's private hospital. At Confluence the train was held for several hours. Mrs. Judy died at the hospital this morning.

Baggageer Dan Quinn, running out of Glenwood, formerly of Connellsville, was in charge of the train. According to R. S. Brashers of this city, who was at Confluence when the injured people were brought there, Mrs. Judy recovered consciousness for a short time. Her first thought was for her 11-month old baby, Charles, who she had been holding in her arms when the accident occurred. She called for the child, who was uninjured except for a bruise over the eye.

The party was on its way to Garrett at the time of the accident.

DEADLOCK KILLS SUNDAY CLOSING LAW IN COUNCIL

Measure to Prohibit Moving Picture Shows on Sunday Fails to Pass.

VOTE STANDS TWO TO TWO

Mayor Marietta and Councilman Duggan Opposed, Councilman Pryce and West in Favor of It West Insists on Vote: Was Introduced on May 21.

Council last night, with a deadlock vote, quashed the ordinance which would have provided against all Sunday moving picture or theatrical shows, for whatever purpose, charity or otherwise. The members lined up two to two on the roll call, and the ordinance is thus killed as effectively as if all had voted against it.

Councilman L. L. West and M. B. Pryce voted yes, and Mayor Rockwell Marietta and Councilman John Duggan no. Councilman J. H. Guyon was absent.

The members, with the exception of Mr. West, were very chary about voting on the measure. It was not presented until Mr. West mentioned that something was being forgotten, and it was only at his insistence that decision was finally made upon it. City Clerk A. O. Bixler had his copy away somewhere and could not find it, whereupon Mr. West produced a carbon draft of the measure from his own pocket, and had it read.

The ordinance, introduced on May 21, would have prohibited all Sunday theatrical performances as unlawful at which an admission was charged of one cent or 30 cents' imprisonment for promoter and house manager who violated the measure.

Mr. Duggan declared that he was not in favor of drastic legislation in these war times. Mr. West insisted that that had nothing to do with it. "We're getting back to the old blue law business with this measure," said Mr. Duggan, "and while I'm not in favor of too open Sunday business, don't want to run the closed business into the mud. Besides, the way that ordinance reads about taking collections, it might include churches and church services in it."

Mayor Marietta said: "I've already guaranteed that there will be no more Sunday shows while I am in office. I'll see to that."

The ordinance was passed up for a time, but after Mr. West had several times demanded a vote, saying: "We might as well settle this thing now," Mr. Duggan said: "Well, if he wants to vote on it, I'm perfectly willing to get it settled."

Mr. Duggan's name called, he said: "Because there is a State law covering the subject, I vote no." Mr. Marietta also took the stand that the measure was unnecessary, declaring that he would see to it that there were no more Sunday shows; and voted in the negative. The other two members were in favor of it.

22 of 35 Claim Exemption, All But One On the Grounds of Dependents.

TO EXAMINE 100 ON FRIDAY

Board Will Summon The Contingents For Both Friday and Saturday On Friday: No Notice Received of Decision Against Religious Exemption.

With 35 out of 45 passing the physical tests, the District 2 exemption board concluded its second day of examinations yesterday. Of the 35 who passed the tests, 22 claimed exemption, leaving only 13 actually accepted for service in the national army. These 13, added to Saturday's 16, make a total of 29 sure of service from Zone 2.

All those claiming exemption did so on the grounds of having dependent wife or dependent wives and children, with the exception of one man, John Layman, who said he had religious scruples. Members of the board had received no notice of the ruling yesterday by which those whose religion forbids fighting will be required to serve in a non-combatative capacity, and Layman was told that he was sure of exemption from service. One alien, Carlo Carlingola, also claimed exemption.

Five who were summoned failed to appear for examination yesterday. The board could not account for these men in any way. Unless they appear within 10 days, they will be drafted into the army, and the right to claim exemption taken away from them.

The board finished up its work within a short time yesterday. Saturday the tests were not concluded until 6 o'clock, but yesterday, everything was over at 4:30. Four physicians were at work: Dr. J. F. Kerr, member of the board, Dr. E. C. Sherrick, Dr. A. R. Kidd, and Dr. L. P. McCormick. In addition, two young men, Elwood Kengy and James Shaner, had been secured to act as clerks.

On Friday the board will call 100 men for examination. They will be taken in order. Those previously announced as having been called for August 18 will be notified by letter to appear a day earlier. The board will make a big effort to wind up the physical tests within a short time.

Ordinances For Improvements on Pinnacle Pass.

Ordinances providing for the paving of East Murphy between Crawford and Jefferson, Pinnacle between Crawford and Crawford, Madison between Crawford and Crawford, Cemetery between Robinson and Madison, and Robinson between Crawford and Sutter, were passed on final reading by council last night, and a resolution authorizing the purchasing agent to enter into contracts for the paving, grading, and curbing and purchase of brick for these streets and Sutter street, in addition, was also approved.

Bids will be accepted for both regular paving block and for warrantite, which Mr. Dugan strongly recommended as a better substitute. The streets are not likely to be paved this summer because of scarcity of brick and labor, and the councilmen seemed to be in favor of laying brick and storing it this winter so that all would be ready for work with some money saved in the price.

MAY CLOSE ALLEY

Pennsylvania Wants Street That Cuts Its Freight Yard.

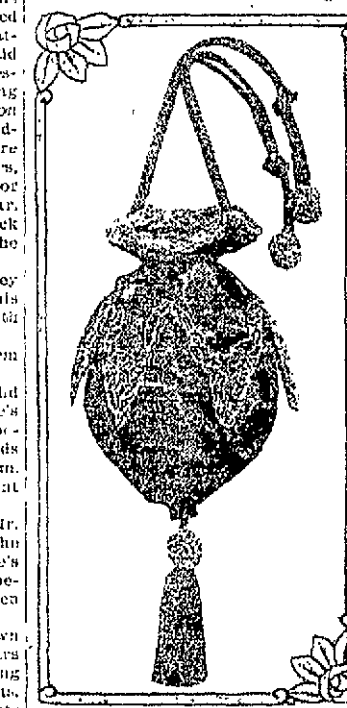

An ordinance turning over to the Pennsylvania railroad group, alley from the west side of Mountain alley to the east side of an unnamed alley, 150 feet from Mountain alley, in consideration of their paying Mountain alley from Apple street to North alley, was introduced in council last night.

Mr. West declared that to take such action would be simply making the railroad a gift of 20x150 feet of ground, not sold to them. The railroad would, of course, close the alley to traffic. The company would have a stretch 575x20 feet, according to the city specifications, within 90 days after passage of the ordinance.

The railroad company has been dickering with the city for a year or more concerning the closing of Grape alley. This cuts directly through the road's new freight yards and if left open will inconvenience the company in its shifting of cars to be loaded or unloaded in the big freight station now about completed after an expenditure of over $100,000. Grape alley is little used east of the freight station.

More local women than ever are expected to be hard at work knitting for the Red Cross, now that an appeal for as many knitted sets as it is possible to make has come to the local chapter.

Murphy, Red Cross commissioner for Europe, has asked for 1,500,000 knitted sets comprising sweaters, mufflers, wristlets and socks. The request is passed on to the various chapters.

"To simplify the knitting as much as possible," Mr. Staub's letter says, "we now have in the printer's hands a new and complete manual of instructions for making the several articles required. The Red Cross Supply service is arranging for a large supply of yarn and knitting needles, to meet the requirements of chapters. Within the next two weeks we expect to have the knitting circular ready for distribution to the chapters and large shipments of yarn will be coming into the various branch supply houses. Desperate need will exist for these articles among the soldier and civil population of France and one other Allies before we can get the articles made. To expedite the completion of the work, we should like to have you start at once, without waiting for the new knitting manual to prepare for the work."

The local chapter will be notified later of the exact number of sets which it is to furnish. "As soon as we learn," Mr. Staub writes, "what proportion of the total of this large order is to be cared for in each section of the country, we shall advise with you as to the share of the total which your chapter should undertake. Please have all your members understand that we do not want the least cessation of effort of workers in the production of surgical dressings and hospital garments. It will be your problem to organize as to get more workers interested and the more constant effort of those who are now giving so much of their time to the work of the Red Cross."

Quite a number of pairs of socks have already been knitted by Connelville women, and have been turned in as follows:

Four pair—Mrs. Elizabeth Cimmias.

Three pair—Mrs. George Frantz.

Two pair—Mrs. C. F. Hood, Mrs. J. R. Davidson, Mrs. S. S. Stadel, Mrs. James McCairns.

One pair—Mrs. A. W. Bowman, Mrs. A. B. Hood, Mrs. Charlotte Poorbaugh, Mrs. Eleanor Robinson (Coalbrook), Mrs. Lillian Keyer, Mrs. J. B. Kirtz, Mrs. Henry Albright, Mrs. J. Vanstone (South Connelville), Mrs. J. B. Ritenour, Mrs. E. E. Cronan, Mrs. Kenny, Mrs. L. P. Showman (South Connelville), Mrs. Artzman, Mrs. Joseph Hill, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Rankin (Adelade), Mrs. Elizabeth Weaver (Adelade), Mrs. C. E. Allen (Adelade), Mrs. J. B. Workman, Mrs. Lena Mitchell, Mrs. Lena Channing, Mrs. Clara Baker (Vanderbilt), Mrs. Charlotte Artzman (South Connelville), Mrs. D. B. Brown, Mrs. Joan Curry.

Donations—Mrs. Lena Mitchell, pair socks; Mill Run W. C. T. U., 10 pounds yarn.

Mrs. Cimmias, one of Connelville's oldest residents, who had already turned in three pair of socks, sent in a fourth pair yesterday afternoon.

In addition to the work and donations listed, there have been 15 dozen "wipes," or sponges, for use in surgical operations, knitted, and three dozen wash towels presented.

PLAN NEW ROAD.

Rockefeller Interests Plan Virginia Coal Line.

By Associated Press.
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Aug. 14.—A report that the Rockefeller interests will build a railway from the Northern West Virginia coal fields direct to Newport News as soon as possible was brought here today by James A. Somerville who has just returned from a trip through the valley of Virginia.

He said many persons in that section already have sold property to be used as a right of way for the proposed road. The road, it is said, is to be a result of the war emergency and will haul coal only.

Seek Escaped Negro.

The police here have been asked to be on the lookout for a negro who escaped from the Mount Pleasant police last night. The local officers were not told what the man was charged with. He is described as being about six feet tall, weighing 160 pounds, wearing a blue suit and black hat. He is thought to have taken a street car for this place, accompanied by a woman.

SCOTSDALE SCHOOL MAN RETURNS FROM 'TRIP OF INSPECTION'

Hubert Elcher Visits Western Schools as Representative of State Board.

SYSTEMS THERE ARE EXCELLENT

One-Story Men in School Construction Worked Out to Advantage in Oregon; Washington and California Also Have Fine Schools; Personnel.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Aug. 11.—Hubert Elcher, assistant secretary of the Pennsylvania State Board of Education, has just returned to his Scottdale home after spending six weeks inspecting schools on the Pacific coast and other western states. Mr. Elcher was sent by the state board to represent Pennsylvania at the National Education Association meeting held at Portland, Oregon, July 7 to 14, and for the purpose of making a thorough survey of the schools of the west, to ascertain wherein the work varies from that of the East and to report any of the features of the work that will lead to the promotion of school activities in Pennsylvania. Washington was the first state visited and an inspection at Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma revealed some new phases in educational work. The large high school and stadium at Tacoma proved especially interesting. Mr. Elcher also speaks very highly of the University of Washington at which he stopped enroute.

In Oregon he reports a fine system of schools. His attention was drawn specially to the many fine one-story school buildings which are rapidly replacing the two and three-story type. The new Benson Polytechnic High school of Portland, which is nearing completion, is a model of the one-story type. This is being erected and equipped at a cost of $300,000.

Mr. Elcher spent most of his time in the schools in California where he was welcomed by many school superintendents and school officials both local and state. Besides making a study of the work and methods of the schools of San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles, San Diego, and other cities much time was spent in rural districts where he reports that local and civic pride are admirably expressed by the type of public school buildings found there. Mr. Elcher was forcibly impressed by the provision made for the accommodation of persons and of the use of schools as civic centers. School buildings are being adopted that serve this purpose. One of the outstanding features of practical work in grade schools was shown by the large number of school gardens which surround many of the schools. It was surprising to learn in one place that one of the smaller schools where children range in age from six to 10 years had raised over $90 worth of vegetables. Gardening was conducted the same as regular class work.

Throughout the Pacific coast, Mr. Elcher states, the education of the youth under the most favorable conditions is emphasized.

Mr. Elcher also visited in Mexico, and found a decided difference between the schools of that country and the United States.

Mr. Elcher cited that through Dr. J. George Best, executive secretary of the State Board of Education, a new building program will soon be submitted to the 2,500 school boards of the state which will provide the most modern standards in school architecture.

Mr. Elcher's Hostess.

Mrs. William Elcher entertained at her Mulberry street home on Friday evening for her house guest, Miss Evelyn Grant of Sharon. The amusements of the evening were games and music. Refreshments were served.

Mr. West had previously repelled intelligently when his name was called for vote on a resolution turning over the $250 license money from the last two years to the city.

Clerk Diller interpreted his vote as "yes," which made it unanimous, and the council will get the money.

J. J. Donnelly was elected city assessor for the coming year, by unanimous vote. This is Mr. Donnelly's second year in the place. His bill for $200 for this year's work was ordered paid.

Another attempt will be made to collect on street paving assessments to the city. "We are past the time," Mr. Duggan said, "when the city must be in the brokerage business, loaning money. It seems to me these property owners who won't pay up for the paving improvements are not giving the city a square deal."

"Everybody has lots of money now, too," said the mayor. "Why, they're carrying it around in tin buckets. What action shall we take to make them pay up?"

"Well, I'll take it up with our attorneys," said Mr. Duggan.

"How damn many times have you taken it up with the attorneys already?" the mayor wanted to know.

The old course was eventually decided upon, however, and it will be up to the city solicitors to devise ways and means for collecting the back payments.

Drastic action will be taken, however, against those who have refused to lay concrete sidewalks, though ordered to do so by the city over a year ago. By a resolution introduced by Mr. Duggan and approved by council, the purchasing agent was authorized to advertise for bids for the construction of sidewalks and curbs before the property of these people in accordance with city specifications, and the work done by the city will be charged to the property owners. Bids will be received Tuesday a week, when council holds its next meeting.

Mr. Pryce reported no fire loss during the month of July. Through an unfortunate occurrence, he said, there had been a break in the fire alarm system, but every precaution has been taken to make things safe, by advising the people to telephone alarms and keep a man at the telephone continually. The fire department again put the system in shape, again was flipped yesterday, he said, and is expected here today.

Mr. Duggan, in his street report, said that he had made arrangements by which prospects were bright for the county and Connelville township to land for the sewerage on Isabella road, about which there has been much discussion.

Mr. Duggan introduced an ordinance transferring $2,000 from Appropriation 40A, Department of Streets and Public Improvements, to Appropriation 33, same department, making the latter appropriation total $3,000.

Much of council's time was spent in discussion of the relative merits of certain kinds of paving, and the variety of brick tests.

LUMP SEEMED TO HAVE A BRICK'S WEIGHT, HE SAYS

Way in M. P. Murray's Stomach Like Lead Until Nervousness Reached the Case: Lifted It Out.

This signed statement was written by the druggist who gave a tip which "brought the answer." "I had previous indigestion and suffered with all the ills that go with the disease. Couldn't sleep, tired in the morning when I'd get up, no appetite, no ambition, had a lump in my stomach. At times I'd think it would weigh as much as a common brick. Took some medicine but got no relief. "Mr. Ford, the druggist, suggested I try the modern new tonic called Nerv-Orth, which I did and after taking only three doses I began to get better. "I CAN SAY I'M CURED OF MY INDIGESTION, and feel fine. Only used one bottle."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE IMMIGRANT."—A two part comedy with Charlie Chaplin in the leading role and "The Maelstrom," a Viagraph feature in five reels, with Ertle Williams and Dorothy Kelley in the leading roles, are being presented today. "The story of 'The Immigrant' involves Chaplin's activity on board an ocean liner bound for America. As may be readily understood, Charlie begins seeking adventures as soon as he sets foot on the deck of the steamer. Edna Purviance, Eric Campbell and others appear in the support of Chaplin. The picture is one of the funniest comedies in which Chaplin, the favorite comedian, has ever appeared. In "The Maelstrom," Ertle Williams is seen as a millionaire clubman; Dorothy Kelley as the girl consort of crooks, and Julia Swayne Gordon as Gwendolyn Lyne, the fence. Tomorrow Senna Owen will be seen in "Madame Bo-Peep," as a gay young flirt.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"How can you do it?" is the question on every Soisson patron's lips as they pass out after seeing the splendid bill which opened yesterday. "Why, it's 'big time' stuff," they say. "Six acts, all different, as devery one good, is what the Soisson management offers."

No funnier pair ever came to the city than Davis & Pollard. They are a screaming team start to finish. Nonpareil of the funniest and most original. Louise Dacre fairly radiates good nature and fun. No matter what she does or says it gets a laugh. She made such a hit the latter part of last week that she was held over for this week. The Karuzas cause amazement with the wonderful shadow pictures they made with their hands. Pictures surprisingly lifelike are made to do all sorts of funny stunts, and it's all in the way they manipulate their fingers. Their act concludes with a shadowgraph cartoon comedy that is extremely clever. Jack Marshall sings and talks cleverly and then climaxes his act with a burlesque trombone solo. Harold Webster's line of songs and talk, given in blackface, goes big.

DuRocher and DeLee present a refined singing and musical act, including vocal numbers and piano numbers by the female member of the team, and xylophone selections by the man, all given in classy manner. The act is particularly well dressed.

The Soisson bill changes Thursday. Another bunch of big time acts are expected.

THE ARCADE.

Zarrow's American Girl company made a hit at the Arcade yesterday. The first appearance of H. D. Zarrow's company pleased. The company is composed of a number of high class artists and every member handles his or her part with a degree of capability that is not far from perfection. The show, with its pretty and graceful chorus and funny comedians is just the sort that touches the spot of appreciation of all. Special stage settings add much to the attraction. Harold Gillis, as a blackface delinquent, is a huge success and he with Ralph Osborne have a line of comedy that makes you laugh whether you feel that way or not. Mr. Gillis and Charles Markert have vocal and dancing numbers that are hummers. Like all of Mr. Zarrow's shows, the American Girl has that air of refinement and polish that is absent from the average production. The performance will be repeated this evening and the offering tomorrow will be "O'Shea's Bean Trust." The film show will be "The American Girl," and Hani and Bud.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"It Happened to Adele."—A live reel Gold Rooster photoplay features Gladys Leslie today. Also a good comedy, Tomorrow William Fox presents Valeska Suratt in "The Siren." Miss Suratt takes the part of a woman beyond redemption, an advertisement without example, who goes through life with a philosophy which makes everything serve her own ends, she is entirely selfish, and she glories in her selfishness. In the end she meets the fate she deserves. On Thursday Mary Miles Minter stars in "Periwinkle," a story of the sonnet and the life savers.

The Big Four

THERE'S just one, great, big, vital point for you to get, in connection with lubricating the motor of your car or truck, and that's this: that, for every possible condition, at least one of these four Atlantic Motor Oils is the exact, proper and correct lubricant for you to use.

The oldest and largest manufacturer of lubricating oils in the world says so, and thousands of motorists can testify to the accuracy of this statement.

Confer with your garageman. His long experience with cars and motor-oils and his definite knowledge of how Atlantic Motor Oils behave in actual use will be of great benefit to you, your car and your pocketbook.

Ask him for the "Why" booklet, or drop us a postcard and we will mail it to you. Engine-lubrication is a serious matter. Treat it that way.

CANNED FUN FOR FOOD CAMPAIGN

Good Advice In Humorous Ditties From Washington.

PRODUCTION'S BIG INCREASE

In All Sections of the United States the Response to Appeals For More Food This Year Has Been Gratifying. Verses Issued by National Emergency Food Garden Commission.

Much has been written about gardeners, canning and drying of fruits and vegetables in recent weeks. This has had a most beneficial effect, as shown by recent government reports, which indicate a tremendous gain in the production of foodstuffs in every section of the country. The National Emergency Food Garden Commission recently issued the following verses, which, in a lighter vein, urge the planting and canning of vegetables:

There was a great dear in Berlin Whoose subjects were all growing thin. In good English he said, "Bally winter I dread Because we have nothing to tin."

The young folks of Lakewood, N. J. Said, "We will make gardening pay. We'll stick to the work, We won't dicker it or shirk, For this isn't work—this is play."

A maiden who lived in St. Joe Wrote east to her Washington beau, "I can't be there in June, It is really too soon, For I'm busy with dad's westward haul."

A charming young girl named Marie Wrote to Mrs. von Stupremant Lee, "I'm buggering your garden, But I'm working my garden And can't get away for your tea."

Said Miss Gladys Claffess McFanner: "I've abandoned my play plan, Art is all very good, But it won't supply food, So I'm playing my tunes on my canner."

Mrs. Sadiech has given up sighing At the cost of the food she's been buying, For she's got 'em all best On the good things to eat Since she's taken to canning and drying.

High diddle diddle, this life is a riddle, For prices have jumped o'er the moon, But plant a food garden on some vacant lot And prices will tumble down soon.

Rock-a-bye baby in the tree top,

Father is hoing his home garden crop, Soon he will harvest enough for us all, And high cost of living will have a bad fall.

Id old Mother Hubbard should go to the cupboard, She'd find all the food she'd desire, For stored away there in foodstuffs to spare, The product of canner and drier.

Old King Food in his merriest mood, Set the nation to work to grow turnips and beans, And he said: "Will we starve? We will not."

Mary, Mary, no longer contrary, Has made a home garden grow With turnips and beans to feed the marines And the soldiers and sailors, you know.

President Pack, come blow our horn, Our allies are calling for wheat and corn, Set the nation to work to grow turnips and squash, And we'll feed the whole world with our food, by gosh!

Pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake, baker's man, Look at the things we're going to can, Cut 'em and dry 'em and store 'em away To give us our food for the cold winter's day.

Dickery, dickery, dook, Why do you come so late? Are full enough of garden stuff Our pantry shelves to stock.

"A dollar, a dollar, a ten o'clock scholar, Why do you come so late? This gardening stunt is great."

Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a thief, Taffy did not work, so he must come to grief. The neighbors planted seeds in their yards and vacant lots, And spent the summer raising things on thrifty garden plots. They're canning 'em and drying 'em and storing 'em away, If Taffy cannot steal 'em he'll have crops-crops-bills to pay.

There was an old man and he had a weed-on leg, And he couldn't steal a ride, not a ride could he beg, So he bought a back yard and he planted some beans, And raised enough cash to buy a dozen machines.

Eleette Has Yanks' Number, When the Yankees beat Eddie Cl-ette June 12 it was the second time in two years, during which time Eddie had faced the Yankees twice, winning eight, losing two and getting no decision in two. His previous defeat was on Aug. 12 of last year, when he was knocked out of the box in four innings.

Value of Potatoes, It has been estimated that if the forces of the earth were completely stocked and scientifically worked they would yield annually the full equivalent of 120 times the present consumption of food.

SUSPEND SOLDIERS' DEBTS.

Pennsylvania Law of 1915 Has Stood Test In State Courts.

Enlisted men in the national service, including those accepted for service by draft, will be protected in Pennsylvania by what virtually amounts to a moratorium.

There is a law on the statute books of Pennsylvania, passed two years ago, which exempts men enlisted in the national service from any "civil process."

It is of special importance and interest to those who may be selected for the army and who have been anxious lest, due to a decrease in their earning power, they would not be able to meet payments on their homes and thus lose them.

According to authorities on realty law, the act of 1915 will prevent a building and loan association, for example, from foreclosing a mortgage held against a home owned by a man in the army, regardless of whether the payments on the mortgage are made as they become due.

It will also prevent, these authorities say, such local action as ejectment proceedings against a soldier's family for nonpayment of rent while the lessor of the property is in service.

NOW IT IS "LIBERTY BREAD."

Loaf of Flour Substitutes to Have New Name Given It.

"Liberty bread" is the term to be encouraged by the food administration, as applied to loaves made of substitutes for wheat flour, rather than the phrase "war bread," used in other war countries.

"The name 'war bread' gives the impression that there is something inferior about the bread made of substitutes for wheat," says an announcement. "The fact is that breads made from wheat substitutes are healthful and just as tasty as those made from wheat." Use of substitutes will be encouraged at the food rationing camps to be held in connection with the fairs and expositions in the near future.

Flowers and Blood.

A superstition dating from olden times exists to the effect that roses and flowers generally attain greater beauty in soil fertilized by blood, especially by human blood, than elsewhere. Persons who have visited Newmarket, England, know of the so-called "bloody flower of Newmarket," which is found nowhere else than in the old moat, now filled up and in which, according to tradition, a very large quantity of human remains is interred. These flowers bloom in June and July and by the bloodlike hue of their blossoms suggest the name which has been given to them.

WILLIAM H. TAFT

Former President Conspicuous in the Public Eye Since He Retired From Office.

© Moffett.

When the American Red Cross society was reorganized on a military basis, former President William H. Taft was the first man to be named a major general by President Wilson. This appointment met with universal favor throughout the United States. The president's action was taken under authority granted him by joint resolution passed by congress last April.

When he retired from the presidency in 1913 Mr. Taft remained steadily in the public eye, although it was more or less distasteful to him. He accepted the position of Kent professor of law at Yale and devoted much of his time to these duties. He interested himself in the war and warmly supported the administration in its war plans. The former president's chief interest, however, lay in Red Cross work, and his efforts to raise funds to care for wounded American soldiers on the battlefield were tireless.

Mr. Taft, twenty-seventh president of the United States, was born at Cleburn, Ohio, in 1857, graduated at Yale in 1878 and admitted to the Ohio bar in 1880. He became circuit judge and was also the first governor general of the Philippine Islands. He twice declined appointment as associate justice of the United States supreme court, but became secretary of war in President Roosevelt's cabinet. He was nominated for president by the Republican convention in Chicago in 1908 and defeated William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic nominee. He was renominated by the Republicans in 1912, but was defeated by Mr. Wilson. Mr. Roosevelt ran on the Progressive ticket that year, having quarreled with the former president. Since his retirement as president Mr. Taft held no public office.

Neutralize Stomach Acid With Magnesia Neutrate

Avoid Deadening Drugs and Artificial Digestants.

Pain in the stomach, after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, gas, etc., are almost invariably due to acidity and food fermentation. To get up to ease the trouble by using digestive powders and pills or deadening drugs is like trying to relieve a wound from a number of places by applying of ointment without first removing the cause. In each case the cause remains and the trouble gets worse. The common sense thing to do when your stomach hurts is to remove the acid and stop the fermentation by means of a simple and effective remedy such as Magnesia Neutrate, which can be obtained of any druggist. A teaspoonful of Magnesia Neutrate taken in half a glass of hot water after eating instantly neutralizes the acid, stops food fermentation and enables the most confined dyspeptic to enjoy a heartiest meal without the slightest pain or inconvenience. Try this simple plan at once and forget that you ever had a stomach. Adv.

"CONTRABAND"

A Romance of the North Atlantic

by RANDALL PARRISH

AUTHOR OF "MY LADY OF THE NORTH," "MAID OF THE FOREST," ETC.

CHAPTER I.

A Yacht Party.

So many times hearing upon these strange adventures which have lately become so common, I have found publication in the newspapers, oftentimes distorted and untrue, and resulting in letters of inquiry from friends, induce me now to write out the tale while the incidents remain fresh in memory. Indeed, I owe the truth not only to myself but even more to her who so bravely shared with me those days and nights of peril.

The earlier portion of my life was the sea, and when others of my age were attending away through their courses in college, I was apprenticed to the merchant service in a fleet owned by my father, trading between New York and northern European ports. Loving the work, and, possibly, assisted by the fact that I was my father's son, I rose rapidly, until licensed as captain of steam, and assigned to command the Vulkan, a freighter of 3,000 tons. At thirty, however, the novelty and fascination of a sea life ceased its attraction, and when my father died, I found myself free to become my share from the estate to enable my resigning this command, and retiring permanently from the service. Circumstances, unnecessary now to relate, caused me to make permanent home in Chicago, where I soon became engrossed in business, finding my sole recreation in yachting upon the Great Lakes. Such were the rather commonplace surroundings of my life, when, at thirty-seven, adventure suddenly called me out into the unknown.

Nothing could have been more unexpected than the occasion which took me to New York. Carrington—Gerald Carrington, the Copper King—had just placed his new steam yacht, the Esmeralda, in commission, and was eager to christen it by a run across to the ports of Spain. He wrote urging me to become one of the party. The temptation was irresistible, for, as I knew Mrs. Carrington was in Europe, the guests on board would undoubtedly all be men, and probably congenial fellows.

A bachelor myself, the long hours at sea had left me unaccustomed to the society of women, whose presence I avoided whenever possible. Hence, I accepted Carrington's invitation immediately by wire, hastily packed the few things necessary for the trip, and, unaccompanied even by a valet, caught the Twentieth Century for New York.

Carrington lived on Long Island, and I talked with him on the phone. There were to be twelve in the party, the names of two, who were former acquaintances, alone being mentioned in our brief conversation. The yacht was lying at Tompkinsville, provisioned, and ready for the sea. I must be on board by three o'clock the following day, and he gave me quite explicit instructions as to the best mode of reaching the vessel.

Even the brief view I had obtained of the boat impressed me strongly, both with its beauty and seagoing qualities. I was rather enough to me precipitate all this at a glance. The Esmeralda was a steam yacht, schooner rigged, of over fifteen hundred tons, constructed for deep-water cruising, well manned, and able to combat the storms of any ocean.

I opened the door and emerged into the main cabin. It was deserted, except for a waiter or two attired in white jackets who had covered a long table suspended by stanchions from the deck beams above, and were spreading it with snowy linen in preparation for the six o'clock dinner. Never had I seen a more cozy, homelike interior. Forward, an open passage, guarded only by silently swinging doors, led to the steward's pantry, and various storerooms beyond, while beside this opening a broad, brass-railed stairway led easily to the upper deck. Sunlight touched the edges of the companionway, and flickered down through a half-opened skylight above, yielding cheerfulness to the scene, yet inviting to the open air. I would meet those with whom I was destined to companion on this voyage across summer seas.

No passengers were visible on the deck, yet this mystery was soon explained as I stepped to the side and glanced aft. The cabin projection was not high, yet sufficiently so to break the force of the headwind, and besides was far enough advanced to give ample deck space at the stern. Here an awning had been erected, and beneath its shelter were gathered the vessel's guests. I recognized but three in the group—Carrington, red-faced and white-haired, a clear crease in his teeth, giving some instructions to the steward; Fosdick, tall, slim, thin-lipped, a lawyer well known to corporations who desired to keep just within legal restrictions, sat at a table, his hand lingering at a half-filled glass while he talked to the man opposite; and McCann, fat, good-natured, born to his father's millions, who amused himself by the pretense of being a broker, interrupting the game of cards in which he was engaged with three others, to tell the latest story of the street. Personally I cared little for either of these men, yet had known both in a way, for some time. The others, judging from the outward appearance, had been recruited from about the same class—business acquaintances of Carrington no doubt. I went forward, greeting those whom I knew, and being duly presented to the others.

Whatever they might have been in a business way, and for that I cared absolutely nothing, they proved themselves a most companionable bunch of fellows to meet.

The memory of that first meal in the snug after cabin of the Esmeralda remains a most pleasant recollection. The cabin had been darkened, and the soft light of a swinging lamp gleamed back from snowy damask and glittering silver. The center was banked with flowers, the service was perfection, and the chef was evidently a genius. We lingered over the wine and cigars, the conversation drifting where it would.

I believe I was among the first to leave the table and return outside, and as my inclination was to remain alone and enjoy the calm of the night, I ventured forward along the deserted deck, until I found faded security from observation in the shadow of a small boat. The others, as they emerged later from the companion, uttered a shout against the light, turned once again aft, and resumed their old places. Nothing occurred to break the monotony, and finally, wearying of it all, I went below, being in no mind to join at games with the others. I was soon asleep.

Some dormant sense of seamanship, aroused to new life, perhaps, by my brief watch on deck, must have awakened me. For I sat up in bed, conscious that the vessel's motion had ceased. All was silent; no jar shook the keel, no footsteps sounded on the deck above, and I glanced at my watch; it was slightly after midnight. Through the open port nothing was visible but the dark waters, and the far-off gleam of a light, alternating in flashes of white. I did not know enough of this coast line to identify the signal, yet it was plainly evident we were some distance from land.

Why the Esmeralda had stopped her engines was no special concern of mine, and I lay down again. But sleep would not return. I tossed and turned, and finally arising in sheer despair, I hastily donned my clothes. The after cabin was deserted, dimly lighted by one shaded electric globe, beneath which the brass stair rails shone dully. I emerged on the deck, gratefully breathing in the fresh night air. As I stood there, a man descended the ladder from the bridge, entered the chart-house and switched on a light. In the momentary gleam I recognized the face of the second officer, and when he finally came out again, I crossed the deck so as to intercept him.

"Anything going wrong, Mr. Sealey?" I asked. "You have stopped the engines."

He stared at me through the dark, blundered still perhaps by the glare of the chart-room, and unable to recognize my strange voice. Yet he was a yachtman, trained above all to courtesy.

"Nothing serious, sir," he announced, civilly enough. "The engines are new, and not well adjusted yet; a bit of shaft went wrong, and has to be repaired."

He turned away, but at that instant my eyes caught the flashing of a beacon away off to the southeast.

"What light is that out yonder, Mr. Sealey? We must be well beyond Boston?"

I glanced in the direction indicated. "Those white flashes? That is Old-field point, sir. Are you acquainted with these waters?"

"Not intimately, although I retain some memory of the charts. I saw merchants' service on the old Atlas line."

"A fine line that," he acknowledged heartily. "I made my first voyage, as cabin boy, on the Mohawk. You are Mr. Hoyle, I presume, sir. I overheard Mr. Carrington tell Captain Turner you were to be one of the party aboard."

"Yes, go on, sir; I must make certain the water is seaworthy. You touched his eye courteously, and disappeared beneath the shadow of the bridge, leaving me again alone, undecided whether to return below, or endeavor to walk off my sleeplessness. I scarcely know what idle curiosity led me to stroll along the narrow deck space, around the cable to the lounching place at the stern. I stopped suddenly in surprise, staring across at the opposite rail, questioning the evidence of my own eyes. There, clearly outlined in the star glimmer, was plainly revealed the figure of a woman. Some instinct of fear, or, perchance, a slight sound of approach, must have apprised her of my near presence, for she turned instantly toward me, bending slightly forward, her face visible in the shadow; and then, before I could either move or speak, she fled along the port rail, vanishing immediately behind the protection of the cabin. I felt sure that her parted lips had uttered a quick exclamation, and her startled effort at escape was sufficient to urge me to pursue. Who could she be? Why was she here on board the Esmeralda? Above all, why should she be so eager to escape observation?

I ran forward across the deck, and quickly explored the passage between the cabin and rail. It was clearly visible in the bright starlight, but the swiftly fleeing figure had totally vanished.

He Lit a Cigar and Leaned Comfortably Back in His Chair.

I reached the steps of the companion, and gazed down through the glass doors. The light below revealed nothing, the cabin remained quiet and deserted. Not a shadow rewarded my search, either on the open deck, or below. Yet surely this was no dream, no hallucination, no mere vision of the night. The woman had actually been there; I had seen her plainly enough, and I heard the echo of her voice. There was then a woman on board—a woman who sought to hide from observation; who ventured on deck only when she thought it entirely deserted and who fled in fright from discovery. I even felt a vague impression of her personality—she was young, slender of form, dressed in some shimmering gray stuff, a light, fluffy scarf concealing her hair.

There was nothing more to do then, although I proved about for some time peering into dark corners, and turning the matter over and over in my mind. It must have been nearly daybreak before I fell asleep again in my own stateroom, nor did I awaken until the steward announced the last breakfast call, by a vigorous rapping on my door.

Carrington was seated alone at the table when I entered the cabin, lingering over his coffee, and he remained to keep me company, seemingly in a genial mood in spite of the delay.

He lit a cigar, and leaned comfortably back in his chair, looking amiably across at me through the blue haze of smoke.

"Rather nice bunch of fellows for a cruise, don't you think?" "Quite so, although I only knew two previously."

"Yes—Fosdick and McCann. The others are either bankers or brokers; fellows I meet every day or so in my business, you know. You have never done much in stocks?"

I shook my head. "My business education was in an entirely different school," I said quietly, ignoring his lead. "My father never speculated."

"I know his feelings on that subject," and Carrington chuckled, as though at a pleasant memory. "I never advocate speculation myself, but have never shown any qualms of conscience against betting on a sure thing. Perhaps we can discuss this later—before our voyage ends."

"This, then, is more of a business than a pleasure trip, sir?" He laughed, watching the smoke rings rise lazily in the air.

"Well, hardly that, my boy. My hospitality is not to be so strictly limited. However, no doubt, we shall discuss some matters of business importance before our return. By the way, you have some little money, I hear?"

"Not a large sum at present, although it is true I control some capital."

Carrington pushed back his chair and arose to his feet.

"That is of no immediate importance," he said carelessly. "But in my judgment, we are not far away from a great opportunity in Europe, which I will pay well to be on the inside. It may interest you to know that a copper pool is being organized."

"I suspected as much; you have some news?" "Exceedingly important news, Listen, Hoyle, this is strictly confidential and worth your thinking it over. Only two men on board know the truth. There will be war in Europe—the biggest war ever known in history—within a month. Do you realize what that will mean, for instance, to copper?"

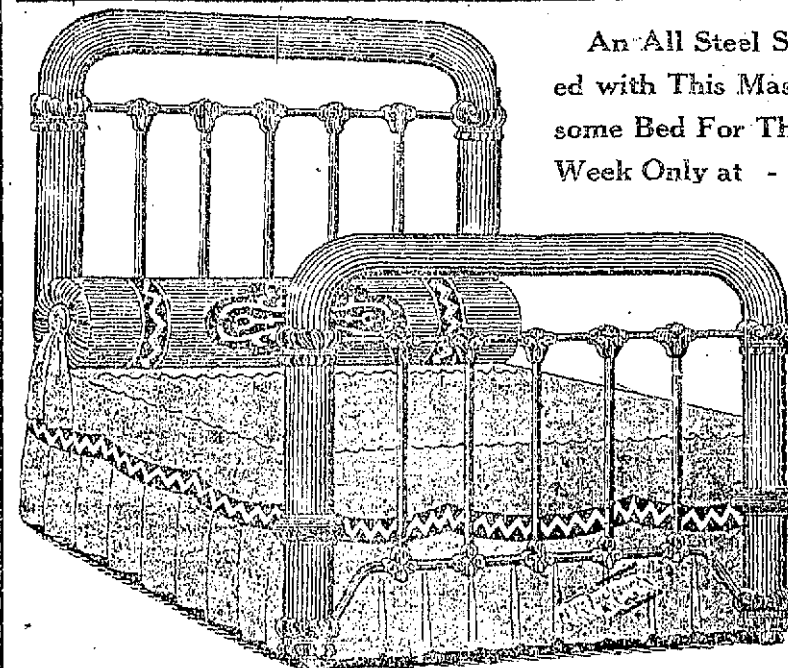

"I can imagine, sir. But if we are on the verge of such a sudden rise in market value, why do you leave New York for a long voyage?"

Carrington smiled, stroking his gray mustache. "A natural question, perhaps coming from one not acquainted with my methods," he answered good-humoredly. "Because I prefer to be thought out of it. Everybody on the street is aware that I am at sea. I thus escape being interviewed, importuned for information. I am unsuspected of being where I can manipulate the market. The Esmeralda is equipped with a powerful wireless outfit, and we have on board the most expert operator to be procured in New York. I shall be in direct communication with my office every hour of the day and night. Tomorrow, even safely beyond Point Judith, I shall explain my plans; meanwhile, Hoyle, think it over."

The turned toward the stairs, but I stopped him, more deeply interested in something else than in his rather vague financial scheme. "The girl on board; it was possible she could have my connection with this affair?"

"By the way," I spoke with an air of carelessness, "Mrs. Carrington, I understand, is at present in Europe?"

"Yes, in Switzerland; I have called her that she had better return as far as London at once."

"You seem very confident as to the truth of your advice."

"I am; I know the man who has reported to me."

"I see; and consequently there are no women on board?"

"Women?" He made a swift, expressive gesture. "Certainly not. I wrote you to that effect, I believe; at least

I so instructed my secretary. This voyage is primarily a business affair. Why should you ask that question, Hoyle? You have met all my guests."

I hesitated, yet determined to put him fully to the test. He knew, of course, his face or manner would betray him, irrespective of his words.

"I imagined I saw a woman on the deck last night, when I ventured out to learn why the engine had stopped. No doubt it was an illusion."

"It surely must have been," his voice evidencing surprise, "for I give you my word there is not a woman on this yacht. What, to your mind, did the creature look like?"

HOME-READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS.

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

A Course of Thirty Daily Lessons Prepared for the Men Selected for Service in the National Army as a Practical Help in Getting Rightly Started in the Business of Soldiering, and Introductory to the Instruction That Will Be Given in the Training Camps.

LESSON NO. 2.

Making Good as a Soldier.

The National Army, in which you are to take your place, truly expresses the American character and ideals. It is a great democratic army. It includes men of all degrees of wealth and education, chosen through fair and open selection by lot. All are brought together on terms of equality. There has been and there will be in this great National Army no favoritism and no "pull."

The poor man will drill side by side with the man who has been raised in luxury. He will learn from the other. The place each man takes for himself will be determined by his own work and ability.

Developing Soldierly Qualities. The question as to whether it is better to join the lotus now or with a later contingent is not worth arguing, since the decision has been made for each man by lot. An ambitious man, however, will be glad to join now. It gives him a better chance for promotion. The commissioned officers of the first contingent are picked men who have voluntarily gone through the hardest kind of training. The officers of later contingents will be drawn largely from the men enlisted in the first contingents. There is plenty of opportunity here for every man to use his brains and his energy and to earn promotion according to his worth. This does not mean easy or quick advancement. It means only that you will have your fair chance—and you would ask for nothing more—to develop yourself and to climb upward step by step.

In order to make good in the National Army you must, first of all, fit yourself to carry with credit the simple title of "American Citizen-Soldier"—one of the proudest titles in the world. This means that you must develop in yourself the qualities of a soldier. The more quickly and thoroughly you cultivate them, the greater will be your satisfaction and success.

There is very little real difference of opinion as to soldierly qualities. They have been determined by ages of experience. Weapons change, but the soldiers who handle the weapons remain much the same.

Three Basic Qualities. There are three basic qualities, without which no man can be a real soldier even though he may temporarily wear a uniform. They are:

Loyalty. Obedience. Physical Fitness. A man without these qualities is in the way and is a source of weakness to an army, both in the camp and on the field of battle.

The Articles of War of the United States set forth the military crimes which are punishable by heavy penalties. Among these crimes are desertion, cowardice, insubordination, drunkenness while on duty, sleeping while on duty as a sentinel, disclosing the watchword, and giving aid or comfort to the enemy. Run over this list and you will see that every one of these military crimes can result only from the absence of one or more of the three basic qualities of a soldier.

Loyalty. A soldier's loyalty governs, first of all, his feelings and actions toward his country, his government and his flag. There can be no such thing as half-way loyalty. The slightest compromise opens the door to treason.

But a soldier's loyalty does not stop here. It governs also his feelings and actions toward the army and toward all the officers under whom he serves. It absolutely forbids disobedience among both officers and enlisted men, or disrespect toward those in authority.

Obedience. Going a step farther, loyalty governs also the soldier's feelings and actions toward his own regiment, his own company and his own squad. Without this form of loyalty there can be no real comradeship; without it you will never feel that personal pride and satisfaction in the service which should mean so much in your army life.

Obedience. The second of the soldier's basic qualities is obedience, based on discipline. Without obedience and discipline an army can not long continue to exist; it will quickly degenerate into an armed mob. As the Infantry Drill Regulations put it, discipline is "the distinguishing mark of trained troops."

Frequently the recruit, with his in-born dislike of being bored, makes the mistake during his first few weeks in the army of resenting the fact that immediate and unquestioning obedience is required of him. He quickly learns, however, that obedience enforced throughout the army is in all situations the chief safeguard of the rights, the comfort and the safety of every man, from the raw recruit to the commanding general. It is a guarantee that the small number of unruly or cowardly men to be found in every group shall be kept in check and forced to comply with rules made for the benefit of all.

Military discipline is always impersonal. Obedience is required not merely of you, but of every man in the army. It is required of the officers by their superiors with fully as much strictness as it is required of you. It will become your duty, whenever you are given authority over other men, to demand from them the same full measure of obedience that others will require of you.

Discipline is not only essential in developing the army, but also in developing your own character as a soldier. "The soldier who is by nature brave, will by discipline become braver."

Physical Fitness. The third basic quality, physical fitness, is also essential that a large part of the time devoted to your training will be spent in building it up. Physical fitness includes not only muscular development, but good health and endurance as well. It is a quality which every man who passes the physical examinations can develop in himself by reasonable care and by obedience to instructions. This is a subject more fully discussed in a later lesson.

On December 23, 1915, he was united in marriage to Miss Florence Meyers of this place. Martin of the Episcopal church, Frostdale, Pa., will conduct the services. Burial will be in the cemetery at 2 o'clock, after which he will be survived by one child, his parents who live in Baltimore, and many friends.
